

The fair was coming to town! Justin saw a sign on the street. It said the fair would be here Saturday.

"I want to go to the fair. May I go, please?" asked Justin. Mom said, "Yes, you may. Dad and I will take you. We will go on Saturday morning."

When they got to the fair, there were already many people in line. Justin, Dad, and Mom waited for their tickets. They walked onto the midway. There were many booths on both sides of the midway. Some booths had games to play. Some booths had things to buy. Justin walked to a booth near by. It had tiny goldfish bowls. The game was to toss a ball into the little bowl. If the ball went in, you won. Justin gave the man a nickel. The man gave Justin three balls. Justin threw the balls at the bowls. One ball went in. Justin had won a goldfish!

Then Justin asked Mom and Dad if he could go to the petting zoo. "Very well," said Mom. "We will let you go by yourself. Meet us here when you leave the zoo."

Justin went to the small zoo. He went inside and saw the animals. He petted the goats and lambs the most. They were very friendly. One goat even tried to eat Justin's shirt! Then Justin wanted to leave. He walked back to meet Mom and Dad. They were not there. Justin waited for a few minutes. Still he did not see them. Justin became worried. What if they had left him by mistake?

Justin walked up and down the midway. He did not see Mom and Dad. He started to feel tired and did not know what to do. Soon Justin began to cry. Then he felt someone grab his arm. Justin turned and cried out. It was just Mom and Dad. Justin was so happy that he hugged them both. "I thought you had left me. I could not find you," he said. "We are so sorry," said Mom. "We went to look at the arts and crafts. We must have missed you."

"Let's go get some cotton candy. That will make us all feel better," said Dad. Justin said, "Great!"
